Rapidly accumulating evidence highlights oral health as a major determinant of cardiovascular and metabolic health, and an estimated 80% of the population is affected by this relationship.

If you are unsure about such a treatment, speak to your doctor or dermatologist who will highlight the possible risks.