there needs to be a concerted effort to develop legislation and protocol that would ensure that these people are prosecuted, because right now they are not being prosecuted.”

and losing weight often leads to improvement in depression.

currently, only around five percent of prostate cancer patients live at least five years largely due to the fact that only one in ten cases is operable